We are looking for a VFX AI Artist to join benuts and help integrate practical, production-ready AI solutions into our visual effects pipeline.

Responsibilities
- Actively monitor technological trends and innovations relevant to the VFX and animation industry.
- Analyze the current pipeline to identify bottlenecks, inefficiencies, and processes that can be improved.
- Propose, test, and document technological solutions (AI, plugins, automation, cloud, etc.).
- Collaborate closely with supervisors, artists, and technical teams to understand their needs and offer tailored solutions.
- Train and support teams in adopting new tools.
- Ensure cybersecurity, governance, and ethical considerations are integrated into technology choices (data security, copyright, responsible practices).
- Contribute to defining the studio's long-term innovation strategy.

Profile / Qualifications
- Strong understanding of the VFX/animation pipeline and associated workflows (practical knowledge of software such as Nuke, Houdini, Maya, Blender, Unreal Engine, etc.).
- Experience in research & development: hands-on experience developing tools and scripts for VFX pipelines or creative environments.
- Proficiency in Python.
- Excellent technological curiosity: AI, automation, and related fields.
- Autonomous, self-driven, and able to turn concepts into concrete solutions.
- Analytical and pragmatic mindset (ability to quickly assess the relevance of new technologies).
- Pedagogical and collaborative spirit (to support artists through change).
- Able to work under tight deadlines and pressure.
- Bilingual in French and English.

Why this role matters
- The opportunity to create and lead a strategic department at the heart of innovation.
- A high-impact role: improving team productivity, comfort, and creativity.
- A stimulating environment where art and technology intersect.
